City of Burbank Investment Portfolio Report for November 2021 Dated December 31, 2021

Dear City Council Members
Justin Hess, City Manager
Judie Wilke, Assistant City Manager
Jennifer Becker, Financial Services Director
Bob Liu, CFO Burbank Water & Power

This report fulfills City, Youth Endowment Services Fund, Parking Authority, Public Financing Authority, Successor Agency to the Redevelopment Agency and Housing Authority resolutions.

CITY PORTFOLIO OVERVIEW

The City must maintain $96 million in liquidity at all times (maturities within one year plus real estate taxes due from the County in April and December) to meet our projected budgeted expenditures. We currently have $275 million in liquidity, with $163 million in our account at the Local Agency Investment Fund (LAIF), $64 million in investments maturing within a year and $48 million in real estate taxes due in April and December. Higher liquidity levels continue to be maintained in anticipation of future cash outflows.

The City Investment Pool ended November at $447 million, down from October's balance of $459 million. Market value slightly decreased to 100.6% in November from 100.7% in October. The weighted average yield of the portfolio at the end of the month is 1.28% and the total rate of return fiscal year-to-date is 1.23%.

Credit News:

On December 21, Moody's revised Apple's rating from Aa1 to Aaa while maintaining its stable outlook, stating that it, "reflects the company's exceptional liquidity, robust earnings that we expect will continue to grow over the next 2 to 3 years, and its very strong business profile. Apple's ecosystem of products and services provides enhanced revenue visibility over time despite some level of volatility that is inherent in its business from product introduction cycles. Governance considerations, specifically, Apple's financial policy of transitioning into a net cash neutral position "over time" and its capital allocations since US tax reform, further support our expectation that the company will maintain an exceptionally strong liquidity profile over the next 3 to 5 years. The Aaa rating considers the strength of Apple's business and financial profile relative to other very highly rated issuers. Moody's believes that Apple has substantial financial flexibility to manage its business risks, including growing regulatory uncertainties, make investments in new growth opportunities, and balance shareholder returns."

On December 16, S&P's upgraded the San Francisco City and County Airport Commission's special facilities lease revenue bonds ratings, issued on behalf of SFO Fuel Co. LLC, from A- to A while revising its outlook to positive stating it "the raised rating reflects our opinion of SFO Fuel Co.'s very strong enterprise risk profile and adequate financial risk profile, our view of the facility's impressive financial resiliency and rate-setting flexibility, and its improved overall market position. The bonds are secured by the facility rental payments that the airport collects from the company under the fuel system lease. The company collects these rental payments from member airlines under the terms of the interline agreement, which provides for full cost recovery of all the fuel system's operating costs and debt on an essentially residual or breakeven basis. The interline agreement establishes the expenses of SFO Fuel Co. as a joint and several liability such that in the event any one member defaults on its obligation to pay its share of the facility's expenses, the other members are subject to an unlimited step-up provision based on their respective fuel use."

MARKET OUTLOOK

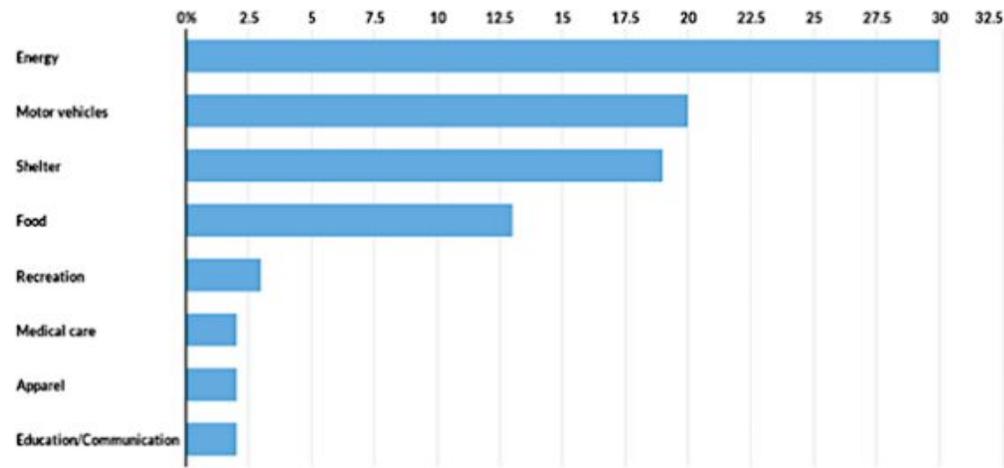

Inflationary pressures continue to hurt the economic recovery, with the Consumer Price Index increasing 6.8% and the Personal Consumption Index climbing 5.7% in November, both the fastest rates since 1982. Price increases have now spread across the broader economy, and not just limited to areas specifically impacted by the pandemic. While supply chain issues have started to ease, the labor shortage still limits production and normal operations. Considering the strong job market, Fed Chair Jerome Powell has recently shifted to a more hawkish outlook. The Federal Reserve will now further accelerate the tapering of its bond buying program to prepare to raise rates once the program ends early next year. Projections show that there could be as many as three rate hikes in 2022, followed by two more each in 2023 and 2024.

Meanwhile, the recent Omicron variant surge is also threatening the economy. The US is now averaging over 400,000 new cases a day, the highest since the start of the pandemic, although hospitalizations and deaths are rising at much slower paces. President Biden and other officials have reiterated that there are no planned lockdowns despite the winter surge. Expanded testing sites will be established and free at-home tests will be distributed to help combat the virus. However, with the outbreaks stemming from rising case rates, certain businesses have already had to shut down or reduce operations. Airlines saw significant cancellations over the past week stemming from not having enough healthy crew members. Theaters and live entertainment have cancelled performances. Companies have postponed return-to-office start dates, while schools have also delayed the return to in-person classes.

There is still a lot of uncertainty as we enter 2022. Almost two years later, the pandemic continues to impact our daily lives. It is still unclear when we can see some resolution over supply chain problems, the labor shortage, and high inflation. As we closely monitor the situation, we continue to maintain adequate liquidity levels to make any adjustments as necessary. The prudent structure of the portfolio has allowed the portfolio's return to be less volatile over the past few years and should improve as rates continue to increase.

The chart to the left shows relevant rates (LAIF, the 12-month moving average of the 2-year treasury, and portfolio current yield) as of November 30, 2021, as well as current treasury yields and those from a year ago.

NOTE: Estimates for the interest earned on LAIF's loan to CalPERS (not allocated until just after the end of each quarter) are included in this month's LAIF yield. The effective rate of return published by LAIF was .20%; including an estimate of the bonus accrual for the loan to CalPERS, the yield reflected on the books for November is .26%. The rate of interest charged by LAIF on the CalPERS loan is the Constant Maturity 2-Year Treasury as of the last day of the quarter.
