City of Burbank Investment Portfolio Report for October 2022 Dated 8 November 2022

Dear City Council Members
Justin Hess, City Manager
Judie Wilke, Assistant City Manager
Jennifer Becker, Financial Services Director
Bob Liu, CFO Burbank Water & Power

This report fulfills City, Youth Endowment Services Fund, Parking Authority, Public Financing Authority, Successor Agency to the Redevelopment Agency and Housing Authority resolutions.

CITY PORTFOLIO OVERVIEW

The City must maintain $101 million in liquidity at all times (maturities within one year plus real estate taxes due from the County in April and December) to meet our projected budgeted expenditures. We currently have $177 million in liquidity, with $67 million in our account at the Morgan Stanley Institutional Liquidity Fund – Government Portfolio, $63 million in investments maturing within a year and $47 million in real estate taxes due in April and December. Higher liquidity levels continue to be maintained in anticipation of future cash outflows.

The City Investment Pool ended October at $474 million, down from September's balance of $477 million. Market value decreased to 93.6% in October from 94% in September. The weighted average yield of the portfolio at the end of the month is 2.31% and the total rate of return fiscal year-to-date is 2.19%.

Credit News

On November 3, Moody's revised Oakland Pension Obligation's rating from Aa2 to Aa1, stating that "a healthy financial position supported by pandemic-related aid relief aid have put the city's finances in a stronger than anticipated position. Despite initially projected deficits through the pandemic, strong performance in core property and real estate transfer taxes combined with pandemic-relief aid helped stabilize the city financially, despite a decline in more economically sensitive revenues. Oakland's robust local economy is supported by ongoing investments from a diverse group of large employers relocating or expanding their presence in the city. We expect reserves to remain healthy and in-line with the previous year. Similar to its reserve position, the city's liquidity will remain very strong. The city's leverage and fixed cost burdens are elevated, but should remain manageable given the significant retirement of outstanding debt in the coming years. The stable outlook incorporates the city's large and diverse tax base that is poised for continued healthy growth and our expectation that the city's financial position will remain strong given management's prudent fiscal practices."

On November 15, S&P's placed Estee Lauder's on negative watch, stating that "U.S.-based beauty company The Estee Lauder Cos. Inc. announced it has entered into a definitive agreement to acquire luxury apparel, eyewear, and makeup brand Tom Ford for a total consideration to Tom Ford of $2.8 billion. However, that consideration is comprised of a $250 million payment provided from Zegna to Tom Ford. The balance of the consideration is Estee Lauder's portion which is $2.6 billion, of which there will be a $300 million deferred liability and a partner payment of $250 million, resulting in an initial cash outlay of $2 billion. The CreditWatch placement reflects our belief that the acquisition could cause Estee Lauder's leverage to remain above 1.5x for a prolonged period, which would potentially offset the strategic benefits of the transaction. Specifically, the incremental financial risk associated with operating at higher leverage levels may cause us to lower our rating on the company if we view its financial policy as less conservative than it was prior to the purchase."

On November 16, Moody's revised Mastercard's rating from Aa3 to A1, while affirming its stable outlook, stating that "Mastercard's diversification strategy has been borne out through the pandemic years, and its business mix continues to strengthen, warranting the equalization of the rating with Visa. The company's strong growth profile is combined with high relative business stability, profitability and cash flow generation. We project Mastercard to sustain a solid growth trajectory in 2023 despite the uncertain macro environment. Mastercard benefits from a central position in the global financial ecosystem as a leading provider of electronic funds movement technology and services. Long-term growth potential is supported by secular trends including electronic payments displacing cash globally, accelerated by the pandemic."

MARKET OUTLOOK

A measure of the world yield curve has now inverted for the first time since at least 2000. The average yield on sovereign debt with a maturity of ten years or more has now fallen below those maturing short-term in one to three years. Yields on the 10-year Treasury dropped last week to 78 bps below that of the 2-year Treasury yield, the biggest gap since 1981. Normally, longer maturity bonds yield higher than shorter dated bonds because investors need to be compensated for higher interest rate and default risks. However, with a yield curve inversion, investors prefer the longer dated bonds because they believe that the Fed would need to cut rates soon, and as a result, short-term rates would be lower in the future compared to the near term. As the Fed attempts to control inflation, it has hiked rates aggressively in the past several months, but some people think it may be too much and with a potential economic slowdown, the Fed may then need to cut rates as early as next year. Some people also believe that inflation will come down soon so the Fed would not have to continue raising rates as aggressively.

In a recent speech, Fed Chair Powell indicated that the central bank may slow down its rate hikes as early as their next meeting in December, with most investors expecting a 50 bps hike. However, he also said that "it is likely that restoring price stability will require holding policy at a restrictive level for some time. We will stay the course until the job is done." He mentioned that while inflation is showing signs of slowing down, the labor market remains tight which could continue to increase costs for businesses. "For the near term, a moderation of labor demand growth will be required to restore balance to the labor market. For wage growth to be sustainable, it needs to be consistent with 2% inflation." The Fed's preferred inflation measure, the Personal Consumption Expenditures index, came in at 6% for October, lower than the previous month.

Consumer spending, however, remains strong with the highest gain since June. Personal income also rose primarily reflecting “increases in compensation and government social benefits.” Meanwhile, the personal savings rate at 2.3% is now at its lowest since 2005. According to Mastercard, US retail sales over the Thanksgiving weekend were up 10.9% compared to last year.
