

Our One-Size-Fits-One Curriculum

There are many fantastic teaching methods and philosophies to choose from, and you might love some aspects of each. But as you've likely noticed, not every child learns best under a singular approach.

We look to nature for lessons big and small.

We allow children the freedom to observe the world and learn from their natural surroundings. Waldorf programs don't explicitly address early literacy until age seven or so. We'll nurture your child's sense of joy, wonder, and curiosity while helping them grow key developmental and school-readiness skills.

Your child will get a well-rounded experience here, including:

- Discovering and playing with natural and open-ended materials.
- Exploring the world around them through nature, community, heritage, and more.
- Experiencing age-appropriate literacy, STEM skills, social and emotional skills, physical education, and more to help instill their confidence early on.

We share similarities with styles like Montessori, Waldorf, and Reggio Emilia—but we don't stop there. Here's how our curriculum helps your child build confidence and a lifelong love of learning.

We value independent learning.

Our educators love how the Montessori method values independent learning. The wonderful thing about our approach is that we have the flexibility to offer independence and structure for kids who need one, the other, or both!

Your child's independence will grow here because they'll:

- Have space for self-led play.
- Practice leadership as classroom helpers.
- Develop an "I can" attitude with the encouragement of teachers and peers.

We follow your child's lead!

We respond to children's interests and curiosities. Our teachers make room for your child to direct their own play and learning experiences while using our curriculum as a springboard for exploration.

Your child's love of learning will shine bright here because we'll:

- Observe how each child learns and experiences the world, take note of what ignites their curiosity, and use that knowledge to expand on our curriculum in ways that are meaningful to them.
- Document and display their classwork within our learning community, which sparks discussions and inspires others.
- Focus on rewarding children for the skills and mindsets they use (like resilience, curiosity, and perseverance) as they make, understand, or create.

We support our teachers so they can support your child.

Following your child's lead also means being prepared when they need something more. Our Individualized Education Services team works directly with our educators to create classrooms where every child feels seen, valued, and supported. Your child's teacher has expert guidance on proactive strategies for addressing challenging behaviors, accommodations for children with medical needs, and support for stressful life changes like divorce or a new sibling. We invest in our teachers, so your child gets the individualized support they need.

Now that you've gotten to know our curriculum a little better, you can feel great about the experience your child will have here. The best part is, you don't have to take our word for it. Our approach has been proven (again and again) to give kids a better-than-expected start in their early education journey.
